SUSPICIOUS TRANSACTION REPORT (STR)

1. REPORT METADATA

- Subject ID: CUS-1013 | Subject Name: Rajesh Singhanian
- Filing Classification: High Priority Suspicious Activity Filing
- Core Typology: Extracted from Typology Match: Structuring (Smurfing), Rapid Layering, and Offshore Capital Flight

2. EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This Suspicious Transaction Report (STR) is formally filed regarding Rajesh Singhanian (Subject ID: CUS-1013) due to an acute and aggressive accumulation of physical cash through deliberate structuring (smurfing), followed by immediate international layering and capital flight. Within a compressed 72-hour window, the subject deposited $48,100 across five transactions deliberately maintained just below the $10,000 Currency Transaction Report (CTR) threshold, utilizing channel shifting to evade detection. Within 24 hours of the final deposit, 98.7% of the total pooled funds ($47,500) were drained via an outbound SWIFT transfer to an offshore entity (Panama Holding Corp) in a known secrecy jurisdiction, exhibiting zero routine baseline consumer activity.

3. SUBJECT & KYC CONTEXT

- Declared Profile vs. Actual Volume Discrepancy: The subject's declared occupation and monthly income are recorded at $4,000 ($48,000 annualized). However, the account accumulated $48,100 in physical cash within a 72-hour period—virtually matching the customer's entire annual declared income in just three days.
- Plausibility Assessment: Implausible. While the subject is stated to be a real estate broker, the use of a personal account for commingled business operations combined with cash-intensive accumulation does not align with standard brokerage practices (which typically rely on escrow accounts, check payments, or institutional wire transfers). The profile fails to provide a legitimate economic rationale for the sheer volume and physical nature of the funds.
- Historical Precedent: No prior AML alerts or regulatory investigations are on file. This case represents an entirely new, highly acute, and aggressive escalation into high-risk typology behaviors.

4. CHRONOLOGY OF SUSPICIOUS TRANSACTIONS

- 2026-03-01 | 09:30 | +$9,400.00 | Cash Deposit (Branch Counter): Intentional structuring just below the $10k reporting limit.
- 2026-03-01 | 14:15 | +$9,650.00 | Cash Deposit (ATM Kiosk): Repetitive same-day cash injection, continuing evasion pattern via alternate channel.
- 2026-03-02 | 10:00 | +$9,800.00 | Cash Deposit (Branch Counter): Persistent high-velocity cash layering, approaching closer to the $10k threshold.
- 2026-03-02 | 16:45 | +$9,500.00 | Cash Deposit (CDM Terminal): Dual daily deposit, maintaining high aggregate volume while evading individual reporting triggers.
- 2026-03-03 | 11:20 | +$9,750.00 | Cash Deposit (Branch Counter): Final cash accumulation step, bringing total pooled balance to $48,100.00.
- 2026-03-04 | 09:00 | -$47,500.00 | SWIFT Wire Transfer (Outbound): Rapid fund drain (<24 hours post-deposit) moving total pooled cash to Panama Holding Corp.

5. TYPOLOGY & REGULATORY GUIDELINES ANALYSIS

- Primary Typology: Structuring (Smurfing) combined with Layering and Capital Flight.
- Regulatory Basis: FATF Recommendation 10 (Customer Due Diligence) and Recommendation 20 (Reporting of Suspicious Transactions); FIU-IND Guidelines on Prevention of Money Laundering (Maintenance of Records, Value of Transactions, Procedure and Manner of Maintaining and Time in which Reports Shall be Furnished).
- Behavioral Indicators Matched:
 - Execution of five consecutive sub-threshold cash deposits ($9,400 to $9,800) within a tight 72-hour window intentionally designed to evade statutory $10,000 CTR thresholds.
 - Channel shifting across physical branch counters, ATM kiosks, and Cash Deposit Machines (CDMs) to avoid single-teller detection or targeted routine scrutiny.
 - Zero routine baseline activity (0% standard salary, utility, or consumer behavior), with 100% anomaly concentration focused exclusively on evasion and movement.
 - Rapid cross-border pass-through layer via SWIFT to an offshore secrecy jurisdiction (Panama Holding Corp).

6. FALSE-POSITIVE VS TRUE-POSITIVE EVALUATION

- Technical Justification: This case cannot be closed as a false positive due to the overwhelming presence of objective indicators of financial crime. The mathematical proximity of five consecutive deposits to the reporting threshold ($9,400–$9,800), combined with a velocity that matches 100% of the customer's annual income in 72 hours, completely negates coincidence.
- Furthermore, the deliberate alternation of channels (branch to ATM to CDM) reflects consciousness of guilt and active evasion of threshold monitoring. Finally, the immediate 98.7% capital drain to an offshore corporate vehicle with zero routine living expenses demonstrates a classic placement, layering, and capital flight cycle with no plausible commercial explanation.
- Quantified Risk Score: 95 / 100 (High Confidence)

7. COMPLIANCE OFFICER CONCLUSION & RECOMMENDED ACTIONS

- Final Adjudication: Confirmed True Positive. The account serves exclusively as a pass-through transit vehicle for structured illicit cash and subsequent offshore capital flight.
- Recommended Account Actions: Immediate restriction and freezing of Account CUS-1013 to prevent further layering or asset dissipation.
- Internal Actions: Mandatory escalation to the institution's Special Investigations Unit (SIU) for comprehensive internal network analysis and possible review of related accounts.
- Regulatory & Law Enforcement Escalation: Formal transmission of this STR to FIU-IND / FinCEN and referral to law enforcement authorities for investigation into potential tax evasion, trade-based money laundering, or proceeds of crime.
